Age bumps up birth risk

A study of 1M Canadian hospital births shows marked increase of risks associated with advanced maternal age

At 38, Nicole Dowling is part of a growing demographic. She's a first-time mother who experienced a few bumps on the road to parenthood.

The largest Canadian study ever done on risks associated with advanced maternal age, released Thursday, examined more than one million hospital births from 2006 to 2009 to measure the impact that advanced maternal age can have on both mothers and their babies.

Almost one in every five births is to a mother over 35, an age when risks associated with pregnancy and childbirth start increasing.

Risks rise significantly after age 40, the study noted.

Three weeks ago, Dowling gave birth to a son after 12 weeks on bedrest to prevent a premature delivery and then had a Caesarian section.

Why age matters

Some findings of the Canadian Institute for Health Information study, In Due Time: Why Maternal Age Matters:

- Half of all first-time mothers age 40 and older have Caesarean sections, compared to 41.3 per cent age 35 to 39 and 27.1 per cent for those age 20 to 34.
- The risk of delivering prematurely (before the 37th week of pregnancy) is one in 11 in the 35-to-39 age group and one in nine in the 40-and-older group, compared to only one in 13 babies among mothers age 20 to 34.
- One out of every 127 babies born to a mother age 40 and older had chromosomal disorders such as Down syndrome, compared with one out of 370 babies born to mothers 35 to 39 and one out of 1,000 babies whose mothers were 20 to 34.

The proportion of women 35 and older having babies is highest in Toronto, where 31.5 per cent of all births are to women in this age group. The national average is almost 20 per cent, up from 15 per cent just five years ago.

"Overall, we find that older moms are more likely to live in urban centres. They are more likely to be in a higher socio-economic status and have higher levels of education," explained Kathleen Morris, director of health system analysis with the Canadian Institute for Health Information.

Cops recover 99 sets of luxury car keys

GETTY IMAGES

One man is accused of breaking into GTA homes, stealing the keys to luxury cars that, if stolen, would total nearly $4 million in losses by police estimates.

Since July, York Regional Police have been investigating a series of residential break and enters across the region, in which several cars were taken — a Maserati, a Range Rover and a Lexus SUV, totaling $250,000.

In executing eight search warrants, officials also recovered numerous disguises, police scanners and a cache of 99 sets of keys to other luxury cars.

Police arrested one suspect on Friday near Bloor Street and Islington Avenue area, but say the investigation is ongoing.

Andrzej Zalewski, 33, of Toronto was charged with numerous counts of break and enter, theft over $5,000, possession of stolen property, and conspiracy.

He has been held in police custody and is scheduled to appear in court Friday.

A city full of savers

Spooked by the 2008 recession, Torontonians appear to be bulking up on cash for a rainy day

Toronto has become a city of savers since the market meltdown of 2008.

Even residents of the Bridle Path — stock central — have beefed up their bank deposits and bonds at the expense of their stocks, according to data from Environics Analytics.

In the four years between 2007 and 2011, savings and bonds in the most affluent neighbourhood in Toronto rose more than 50 per cent. Stock market investments have remained essentially neutral — at zero to minus 10 per cent — which could signify that they withdrew from the market or that they lost money on their existing portfolios.

"The Bridle Path is the most affluent neighbourhood in Toronto — stock central," according to Peter Miron, a senior research associate at Environics Analytics. "It suggests that the city's wealthiest residents are saying, 'Let's be cautious.'"

Residents of The Beach have become even more conservative. Now an affluent community, it skews toward younger, highly leveraged households that can't afford to lose money.

Deposits into GICs, bonds, chequing and saving accounts have increased 30-50 per cent in The Beach. Investments in stock and mutual funds have dropped more than 20 per cent.

Accidental nudity just part of the game

Lingerie Football League's media day begins awkwardly First two players fumble, one says her hair got in the way

The women of the Toronto Triumph are muscular athletes. Two are elementary school teachers, and some are mothers.

But to appeal to a mass audience, they have to compete in bras and underwear, their spray tans glowing as they tackle each other to the ground.

You might think that's sad, or maybe you think it's empowering. Most importantly for the team, it's a chance to play football on the newest expansion team in the U.S.-based Lingerie Football League .

Tiffany Russell, 25, a women's studies student at University of Toronto, is wearing a powder blue bra and underwear with lace accents at Thursday's media day, in advance of Saturday's home opener.

"Being in lingerie," she pauses, making air quotes, "is just part of it. But I love sports."

Russell plays in other football leagues. This is simply another option.

All 20 women on the Toronto Triumph are high-level athletes, but only a third have football experience.

The women have trained all summer. Many have bruises on their arm, and some have "turf burn" on their thighs.

Full disclosure

- Even though players aren't paid, they must sign a contract that acknowledges accidental nudity is a possibility.
- Players also agree to pay an undisclosed fine (reportedly $5,000) for quitting.
- Although there is no salary, the players pointed to additional perks: Free tanning, gym memberships, physiotherapy, massages and media exposure.
- LFL games are broadcast on MTV2.

Artist finds muse in Rob Ford

Few expected Rob Ford would be a catalyst for an art movement, but Deadboy, a Toronto street artist, has emerged as the unlikely star of the city's new war on graffiti — one that has spawned a wave of street art with the mayor himself as its icon.

Deadboy is part of a cadre of street artists who have been given purpose, and political potency, by the mayor, and the results are on walls all over the city's downtown.

There's Mayor Ford giving us the finger.

There's a "Fordzilla" Mayor Ford eating a streetcar. There are the brothers Ford, Rob and Doug, as Tweedledum and Tweedledee.

His specialty is stencils. He takes a design, makes photocopies, then plasters them around town.

Student won't back down

A York University student who mistakenly accused her professor of making anti-Semitic remarks refused to apologize even after being ridiculed for her comments.

"I understand that there may have been a miscommunication," Sarah Grunfeld writes in a statement distributed Wednesday by B'nai Brith Canada. "But any miscommunication was on the part of the professor, not me."

Grunfeld accused social-sciences professor Cameron Johnston of telling a class that "All Jews should be sterilized."

In fact, Johnston, who is Jewish, was explaining to students that not all opinions are valid or acceptable, using the example of Jewish sterilization as a reprehensible opinion, with historical precedent. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Get back to bargaining, students say

The College Student Alliance is warning that the impact on students of a strike by support workers at Ontario community colleges will increase the longer the strike continues. The group says students have reported problems getting needed services such as IT, child care and tutoring, and adds some students' semesters are threatened by the walkout.

No word yet on plea for boy accused of killing police officer

A 15-year-old Newmarket boy charged with killing York Regional Police Const. Garrett Styles is still under police guard and remains paralyzed at an undisclosed hospital. Lawyer David Berg said his client, who cannot be named because of his age, is paralyzed from the waist down.

Depressed and fully aware of the charges against him, the youth "can speak normally," the lawyer told reporters.

He spends his days undergoing occupational and physical therapy.

It was the first public disclosure of the youth's condition since Styles was killed during a routine traffic stop that soon escalated out of control in the early morning hours of June 28 on Highway 48 in East Gwillimbury, north of Toronto.

"His injuries are, of course, catastrophic. I don't know if anything will come back. He has some use of one arm, but may never walk again."

The youth still hasn't had a bail hearing and, until one is arranged, he will remain under guard.

Mayor's plan could freeze affordable housing: Councillor

The chairwoman of Toronto's affordable housing committee has written Mayor Rob Ford asking him to hold off on a proposal that would halt the construction of new affordable rental housing.

Coun. Ana Bailao says she is concerned about city manager Joe Pennachetti's report on the core services review.

Pennachetti suggests that the city reduce new affordable housing development by limiting it to the completion of "existing council approved commitments" funded by the federal and provincial governments.

The suggestions are set to go to next week's executive committee.

"Closing the door on providing affordable housing? That's what scares me," Bailao said.

Of particular concern to Bailao is the fate of $108 million in federal and provincial funds that are coming to the city.

LUCAS OLENIUK/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

▶ Ana Bailao

The money was announced in August, and is earmarked for housing allowances for people renting in the private sector, down-payment assistance for first-time buyers, repairs to existing private rental units that are affordable and the creation of new affordable rental housing.

But because city council hasn't approved any projects using the $108 million, Bailao and other councillors fear the new affordable rental housing component of the money would be nullified.

DVP, subway and several streets to shut down

Heading into the final weekend of summer, one of Toronto's busiest expressways will be shut down for annual fall maintenance, and street festivals will close several Toronto streets. Transit riders will also face service interruptions.

▶ City crews will be working on the Don Valley Parkway from Saturday at 2 a.m. until 5 a.m. Monday, causing a full closure of all lanes in both directions from Hwy. 401 to the Gardiner Expressway.

▶ The TTC is reminding subway riders that the Yonge line will be closed between Eglinton and Bloor stations on Saturday and Sunday for track work at St. Clair station. Accessible shuttle buses will run until regular service resumes Monday morning.

▶ The Ukrainian festival and parade will close a stretch of Bloor Street West for the entire weekend, beginning Friday at 9:30 a.m. and ending midnight on Sunday.

▶ The Bloor West Village stretch of road will be shut down to traffic from Jane St. to Glendonwynne Rd., with an extended closure to High Park Blvd. on Saturday to accommodate the parade, which starts at 11 a.m. in the park. Local roads may be affected.

▶ Also in the west end, the Polish Festival will close Roncesvalles Ave. between Grafton and Boustead avenues from 6 a.m. Saturday to 11 p.m. Sunday. Toronto Police say traffic may be affected from The Queensway to Dundas St. W. Motorists are encouraged to avoid the area or use public transit.

GO bus strike deadline delayed

GO bus riders are getting a reprieve from the threat of a drivers strike on Monday.

Metrolinx, which operates GO Transit, and the union representing about 650 bus drivers went back to the bargaining table Thursday.

A Monday strike deadline has been delayed and no new date has been set. The earliest it could possibly be is Sept. 26, but that's far from certain, said Ray Doyle, president of the Amalgamated Transit Workers Local 1587.

A new strike date won't be set until the Ontario Labour Board rules, at Metrolinx's request, on whether the two parties have a legal strike agreement, he said. That ruling could come as soon as Friday, according to Doyle.

He promised the public will be notified when a new strike deadline is set.

Metrolinx wouldn't discuss details of talks on Friday, saying they're confident a negotiated settlement will be reached.

So who shared Hudak's photo op?

Were they sex-case protesters or was it a 'startling new deceit?'

DECISION ONTARIO

Progressive Conservative Leader Tim Hudak is shrugging off accusations he used a parents' group for political gain.

He's accused of doing it while touting the Tory plan for an online public sex offender registry.

A newspaper said that community members beside Hudak while he was outlining details of his justice platform in Leamington on Wednesday weren't part of a parents' group that protested the placement of a sexual predator near a town school.

Cynthia Raheb — part of a group protesting a sex offender living at a halfway house that shares a fence with an elementary school — told the newspaper a campaign aide had asked if members would appear with Hudak but the group declined.

But then she saw people she didn't recognize beside him at the announcement.

Raheb said she was shocked and the incident changed her view of the PCs.

She told the newspaper: "I mean how much can you trust them at this point now?"

The Liberals were quick to pounce on the story, issuing a news release that called Hudak's stop in Leamington a "staged event" that set a "startling new record for deceit."

But Hudak said the people with him were community leaders … "leaders on their school councils, grandparents that had kids at that school where the sex offender was living next door."

NDP plans four-year freeze on tuition fees

The New Democrats attacked rising tuition costs Thursday in an education platform they said will help give all students an equal chance to learn.

An NDP government would freeze university and college tuition for four years, leader Andrea Horwath said at Ryerson University.

Horwath also pledged to scrap the interest on the provincial portion of student loans if her party is elected Oct. 6.

"In a global economy, our prosperity as a province will be measured by the quality of our education system and by how accessible that system is," she said.

NATHAN DENETTE/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ NDP LeaderAndrea Horwath is interviewed by Ryan Rocca, 13, at Queen's Park on Thursday.

"It doesn't help any of us to have new graduates buried under a mountain of debt."

The program would cost $950 million over four years, with the bulk of the money going to universities and colleges to make up for the lost revenue, the NDP said.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Students speak

- Several student groups said they welcomed the party's move to lift some of the financial burden.
- Others complained the program would barely make a dent in the massive debt graduates shoulder.

Copyright gone wrong stymies profs

Post-secondary students and faculty across Canada can add one more point of confusion this year to the usual back-to-school chaos: Copyright.

Nearly three dozen colleges and universities are pulling out of the body that collects money on behalf of authors and publishers, forcing a sudden copyright crash course on campus.

The resulting wariness means students aren't getting the same course material they received in the past as guarded professors choose to simply eliminate material from classes rather than risk a lawsuit.

What can professors photocopy? What can they post to their websites? Are links OK? What about putting articles on reserve in libraries and resource centres?

Access Copyright used to make these types of questions moot, acting as the middleman between schools and the publishing industry for 17 years. A flat rate of about $3.38 per full-time student, plus 10-cents per copy, was levied from the post-secondary institutions in exchange for near-free rein to copying materials.

$45 The new fee per student, up from a flat rate of about $3.38 plus 10-cents per copy.

But when the collective announced last year they were going to dramatically increase the fee to $45 per student and venture into controlling new areas such as hyperlinks, the education world revolted

Now it's up to many universities and colleges to figure out what can or cannot be copied, and how to get permission from licence holders. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Report outlining Mob links rocks Quebec

Province's elections watchdog announces plans to probe deeper Opposition party says premier has three options: Call public inquiry, hold election, resign

Two years of pent-up scandal in Quebec has erupted with news of an elaborate web of corruption implicating the construction industry, political parties and criminal groups like the Mafia.

The reported scam involves crooked civil servants colluding with construction companies and helping them find loopholes in the tendering process, allowing them to charge more for public-works contracts.

The companies, allegedly tied to the Mob and criminal biker gangs, would then use some of that extra profit to pump contributions into the coffers of political parties.

Those sensational conclusions were reportedly outlined in a document produced by the province's new anti-corruption task force and leaked to Quebec media outlets.

The news was greeted as a bombshell.

While the province has, over the last two years, become increasingly used to allegations of systemic rot in the public tendering process, it has not seen them emerge on such a scale and from such a source.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

"It's right there, in black and white, written by an investigator (Duchesneau, shown above) who is beyond all reproach, who says a system exists in Quebec ... that winds up inflating price tags to launder money and then finance political parties."

Corruption on an 'unexpected scale'

First to report on the contents of the study were Radio-Canada, the French-language CBC, late Wednesday, and Montreal La Presse in a front-page report Thursday with the following headline: Mafia, Bikers and Cartels.

La Presse quotes the document as saying that, even after two years of scandals, the level of corruption uncovered was on an "unexpected scale."

According to another quote from the document, the actual scope of corruption is so massive that it risks actually "usurping certain functions of the state."

Opposition parties have been demanding a public inquiry, but the government has stood its ground and insisted a massive police dragnet is the best way to handle the crisis.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Regrets leak

There's little indication the Charest government might yield to renewed calls for a probe.

- Quebec Transport Minister Pierre Moreau (pictured left) expressed regret Thursday that the document had been leaked. He said the public release could tip off suspects to the fact that investigators are on to them.

'Rotten apples'

The Quebec government is refusing to release the contents to the general public.

- The transport minister tried to cut off renewed demands for an inquiry.
- Pierre Moreau cited the report as proof they are on the right track and that they made a wise choice appointing ex-Montreal police chief Jacques Duchesneau to head the unit.
- "Our government gave Mr. Duchesneau the mandate," Moreau said.
- "We had the courage to say, 'Let's examine this with the help of someone who is competent and trustworthy.'"
- He also sought to defend the reputation of his department and of Quebec's civil service. He noted that the Transport Department has 6,000 employees — and that the vast majority are honest.
- However, "there are rotten apples," he conceded.
- "That's what the report seems to say."

Greece. Protest

Students shout down reforms

A Greek reform bill passed last month is coming under fire. The bill aims to improve the operation of universities marred by chronic waste of state funds and curb massive spending on overseas education, a practice common among many Greek families. But some students are opposing the reform, and have occupied more than 100 faculties across the country to get their point across.

Bitterness casts pall on racism conference

United Nations looks to avoid problems that have marked past events ◗ Many countries staying home

The United Nations' first conference on racism ended up in fierce acrimony, with accusations that it was hijacked to bash Israel, Zionism and Jews.

Ten years after that event in Durban, South Africa, member states are meeting again on the same subject, and some are wondering why anyone would want to remember a gathering that gave its organizers such a black eye.

The bitterness is still evident as next Thursday's daylong meeting, dubbed Durban III, approaches. The U.S., which walked out of the 2001 event and boycotted the 2009 follow-up, is shunning this one too. So are Australia, Canada and Israel, along with six European countries — Austria, Britain, the Czech Republic, Germany, Italy and the Netherlands.

The UN maintains that its 2001 event was unfairly tarred as anti-Semitic. And many countries, especially African and Muslim ones, believe the meeting is necessary to underscore the problems they face.

Hijackers could get IDs in U.S.?

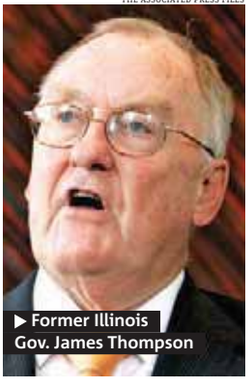
Commission says identification standards are not in place Panel questions safety across nation post 9-11

Hijackers like those who crashed planes in New York, Washington and Pennsylvania could still get state IDs today despite efforts to create uniform standards for identification, a member of the panel formed to examine the attacks said Thursday.

Former Illinois Gov. James Thompson said the 9-11 Commission's 2004 report called for federal identification standards, but those haven't succeeded because of civil liberties concerns and states' desire to guard their processes.

"Our credit card companies know more about us than the government does,"

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FILES



▶ Former Illinois Gov. James Thompson

Thompson said during a panel discussion at Indiana University. "We ought to grow up and say hey, we're facing the kind of threat in America we have never, ever faced before. We have to adopt measures we have never, ever considered before."

Eight of the 10 commission members attended the discussion and reflected on whether the U.S. is indeed "safer, stronger, wiser" as outlined in the 585-page road map.

Commission members said many recommendations are now reality, but said some key ones — including better communications for police and fire — are still undone a decade later.

People forced to move from sinking country

- World's lowest country at risk from rising sea levels
- Global warming taking toll on nation: Maldives minister

Entire communities on some islands in the Maldives have been forced to relocate because of rising sea levels, a Maldive minister said Thursday.

Climate change skeptics only have to look at this country, an archipelago in the Indian Ocean, and other sea-level nations to see its horrific effects on the environment, Environment Minister Mohamed Aslam said.

"In the past two to three decades, we have relocated entire populations from one island to the other simply because life wasn't sustainable in those islands," he told an Asian Development Bank conference on climate induced migration.

ED WRAY/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ Maldives is the smallest Asian nation.

He did not elaborate on how many people were forced to relocate but typically the islands are populated by a few hundred or thousand people each.

With a population of about 313,000, Maldives is the smallest Asian nation in population and land area.

The average ground level is 1.5 metres above the sea level, making it the lowest country on earth. The highest point in the country is only 2.3 metres, making it extremely vulnerable to inundation by sea.

Aslam said in parts of his country, fresh water has become scarce, entailing expenses to desalinate sea water.

Soil chemistry has also changed, with some crops unable to grow, and many islands have been eroded.

Maldives would be among the earliest victims of rising seas as glaciers melt due to global warming, and its officials have become vocal advocates of climate change policy.

Cameras catch Norway's killer

Security cameras captured images of the Norwegian far right extremist accused of killing 77 people minutes before he detonated a car bomb outside the prime minister's office two months ago, police said Thursday. A still photograph from the images published online by Norwegian Internet news service ABC Nyheter was authentic, Oslo police spokesman Roar Hansen said.

On July 22, Breivik exploded a car bomb that killed eight people in Oslo's government district and then drove to the island of Utoya where he went on a shooting spree, killing 69 at a Labor Party youth camp.

'Fireball' likely the cause of light over U.S.

A brilliant light seen darting across the Southwest U.S. night sky was most likely a piece of asteroid that entered Earth's atmosphere, a NASA scientist said Thursday.

Scores of people from Southern California to Arizona reported to local authorities and media outlets Wednesday that they saw the light hurtle quickly from west to east at around 7:45 p.m. PDT.

Many described the light as bluish-green and others as yellow and orange. Some captured video of the object.

Don Yeomans, who heads NASA's Near-Earth Object Program, said he was convinced it was a fireball — a fragment of an asteroid the size of a baseball or basketball that hit the atmosphere and disintegrated before reaching the ground.

This natural phenomenon tends to happen on a weekly basis, but usually occurs over the ocean where no one sees it.

"It's unusual for an object of this size to be seen over populated areas," Yeomans said.

Teen stabs classmates with needle

PUERTO RICO. Health officials in Puerto Rico say A 14-year-old middle school girl has stabbed 37 classmates with a hypodermic needle. All are being tested for possible diseases and are being given preventive medicine.

Health Department spokeswoman Margarita Casalduc says the attack occurred Tuesday at a school in the southern coastal town of Arroyo. She says she does not know if the syringe was contaminated.

ONTARIO DENTAL ASSISTANTS ASSOCIATION
ODAA
Sharing our pride. Shaping our future.

We're nearly there!

After sitting on the sidelines for so long, the ODAA (Ontario Dental Assistants Association) will finally have our turn in the spotlight! The Ontario government has agreed to consider the regulation of Ontario dental assistants, and HPRAC (Health Professionals Regulatory Advisory Council) will begin our review in November.

If regulation is passed, then all dental assistants must be formally educated to work in a dental office – rather than being trained on the job.

Regulation will mean that you can be completely confident everyone at your dentist's office is properly educated to protect your health and safety.

Did you know that dental assistants in eight provinces have been regulated since the '70s? You can help make the regulation of Ontario dental assistants a reality by talking to your MPP or visiting http://www.hprac.org/en/projects/Dental_Assistants.asp to share your thoughts.

Together we can ensure that Ontario families continue to receive the highest level of safe dental care.

A message from the Ontario Dental Assistants Association, the certifying body for Ontario Dental Assistants for over 40 years.

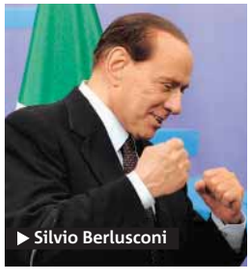
Berlusconi could face another trial

Italian PM already faces four active legal cases

JOHN THYS/GETTY IMAGES



▶ Silvio Berlusconi

Already facing criticism over Italy's financial crisis and engulfed in a sex scandal, Prime Minister Silvio Berlusconi might face another trial in Milan.

The latest storm surrounding Berlusconi centres on a 2005 banking scandal. A Milan judge said Thursday that Berlusconi has pushed for the publication in a newspaper owned by his family of wiretapped conversations that should have remained secret because of an ongoing investigation.

No decision has been made on whether to indict the prime minister. The final word rests with a magistrate in Milan, and no date on when that decision might come has been set.

Berlusconi's supporters called the move further proof that Milan magistrates are out to get the prime minister. His lawyer, Niccolo Ghedini, called the charge "absolutely incredible" in a country where wiretapped conversations are constantly leaked and published in the media.

Berlusconi is facing three separate trials on charges including corruption, tax fraud and accusations that he paid for sex with a minor. The sex trial resumes next month.

A fourth case is at a preliminary phase.

The 74-year-old Berlusconi has denied wrongdoing and insisted he is the victim of politically-driven magistrates intent on ousting him from power.

In a separate case, prosecutors in Bari said Thursday that they had concluded an investigation into the activities of a businessman who allegedly recruited prostitutes and other women to attend parties at Berlusconi's residences.

▶ An iceberg off the coast of eastern Greenland. An assessment of climate change shows that melting Arctic ice is likely to raise global sea levels by as much as 1.6 metres in this century.

Arctic's big melt

◗ Sea ice shrinks to near record low level this summer ◗ Thickness has decreased by 40-50%

Arctic Sea ice melted this summer to the second-lowest level since record-keeping began more than 50 years ago, scientists reported Thursday, mostly blaming global warming.

The new measurements, taken by the National Snow and Ice Data Center, showed that the amount of ice covering the Arctic hit its lowest point late last week, covering just 4.33 million square kilometres. Only in 2007 was there less summer sea ice, which has been dramatically declining since scientists began using satellites to monitor melt in 1979.

Each summer, sea ice melts and then refreezes starting in the fall. The summer minimum is a key measurement for scientists monitoring man-made global warming. This year's level is 36 per cent below the minimum.

The University of Bremen in Germany, which uses a different satellite sensor and has been monitoring levels since 2003, reported last week that this year's sea ice actually fell below the record set in 2007. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Housing market holds steady

324,030 homes have traded hands via CREA's MLS system so far this year

The global economic turmoil that roiled stock markets around the world in August left no discernable trace on the Canadian housing market, according to figures from the body that represents the bulk of real estate agents.

The Canadian Real Estate Association's August resale housing report showed sales of existing homes held steady from July and posted a significant gain from year-earlier levels.

The number of newly listed homes also remained steady, CREA said, adding the number of balanced local real estate markets is currently the highest on record. Housing prices rose 7.7 per cent year-over-year to $349,916.

Robert Kavcic, economist with BMO Capital Markets, said rock-bottom interest rates, combined with strong national job growth throughout the year, have helped to sustain real estate market performance.

Ford plant closes

The Ford assembly plant in St. Thomas, Ont., has closed after four decades, throwing 1,200 hourly-paid employees out of work. A decade ago, there were about 3,600 union members at the factory.

The plant has been building full-sized sedans, such as the Lincoln Town Car and Crown Victorias, but sales have fallen steadily for years.

1 Kienan Hebert: "OMG I can confirm that Kienan Hebert was returned by suspect @ around 3 a.m." That was the shocking tweet sent out by RCMP spokesman Dan Moskaluk Sunday saying that three-year-old Sparwood, B.C., boy Kienan Hebert was brought home safe. Randall Hopley allegedly abducted him five days earlier in a case that gripped the nation. Miracle.

2 SYTYCD cancelled: Fans were shocked this week when it was announced CTV ratings-winner So You Think You Can Dance Canada, which showcased the country's vibrant young dance community, was being canned. This on the heels of the finale of Season 4, which Jordan Clark, 19, of Tottenham, Ont., won. Time to bring back Electric Circus (or EC, as so many fans knew it).

3 The Sound of Silence: Paul Simon's beautiful The Sound of Silence, written in 1964 in the aftermath of the assassination of JFK, took on a whole new meaning for both an older and newer generation when he sang it on the 10th anniversary of 9-11 at Ground Zero. The song was perhaps the poignant moment of the tribute, and already has over a million views on YouTube. For some, it will now be the 9-11 memorial song.

4 Anderson: It's RidicuList how busy Anderson Cooper is: He's behind the anchor chair and jetsetting around the world covering world events for CNN's AC 360, and now he has a new daytime talk show. Anderson debuted this week, where the pop-culture junkie takes off his tie and sits on a sofa to interview guests (Snooki!). Sounds promising as long as he doesn't start channelling Maury Povich.

6 Online dating study: According to an online dating study released this week by WhatsYourPrice.com, women "in general prefer to date men who are approximately six years older than they are, but who are less than 10 years older." I'm only a year older than my wife. No wonder she says I'm immature.

7 Madonna and hydrangeas: Last week, Madonna dissed a fan who gave her hydrangeas at a Venice Film Festival press conference. "I absolutely loathe hydrangeas. He obviously doesn't know that," she whispered in a moment caught on tape that went viral on the interwebs. Her response this week? A tongue-in-cheek Madonna's Love Letter to Hydrangeas on YouTube. Nice apology, Material Girl.

8 Steve Nash: Steve Nash opened the Toronto Stock Exchange this week for a health company he has partnered with, Liquid Nutrition, which will be opening more franchises here. Apparently everyone there wanted a piece of Nash. Let's see: Nash is Canadian, an NBA star, fights obesity, has a charitable foundation, an Order of Canada, a star on Canada's Walk of Fame, is articulate and has 615,000 Twitter followers. Worth mentioning

In science fiction, amber preserved the DNA that allowed rebirth of dinosaurs in Jurassic Park. In real life, amber preserved feathers that provide a new image of what dinosaurs looked like.

"Now, instead of scaly animals portrayed as usually drab creatures, we have solid evidence for a fluffy colored past," reports Mark A. Norell of the American Museum of Natural History.

Examples of ancient feathers ranging from the simple to the complex are now being studied. They were preserved in amber found in western Canada, researchers led by Ryan C. McKellar of the University of Alberta report in Friday's edition of the journal Science.

Amber, hardened tree resin, preserved a mixture of feathers from 70 million years ago. Other feathers contained in amber dating to 90 million years ago are less diverse.

Indications of feathers have been found on much older fossils, and the new discoveries indicate feathers continued to develop into modern form before the extinction of dinosaurs.

A generation that grew up with more graphic language and sexual images in the media is forgoing the decades-old practice of tiptoeing around female genitalia.

The new freedom to talk about the vagina comes as marketers spend more to get women to buy products for the area.

- Ryan Gosling is Driver, a movie stunt driver/grease monkey by day and get-a-way wheelman by night. Befriending his neighbours Irene (Carey Mulligan) and young son Benicio (Kaden Leos) he makes a deal to drive get-a-way for some criminals to square a debt Irene's husband ran up and safe-guard the mother and child. When the deal goes bad he unwittingly becomes involved in a treacherous situation.

A strong, silent type

Ryan Gosling is an intriguing man of few words in the action-packed Drive
Film is a tension-filled, artfully shot escape, with a great soundtrack to boot

Metro World News Hollywood Correspondent Ned Ehrbar sits in for Mark Breslin this week.

Richard: Ned, Gosling isn't the easy charmer of Crazy, Stupid, Love, he plays Driver like a coiled spring. There hasn't been a leading man this close-mouthed since Rudolph Valentino was the king of the silent screen. He's a man of very few words, but his silence hints at an active inner life and his actions certainly speak to having a past. It's a brave and strange performance, either emotionally shut down, or simply cool-as-a-cucumber, take your pick.

Ned: Definitely the strong silent type. But I guess if your best friend is a scheming, motor-mouthed deadbeat like Shannon (Bryan Cranston), you learn to keep your mouth shut. The expression Gosling has on his face most of the time seems just as likely to turn in to a smirk or have him burst into tears, making him fascinatingly impossible to read.

But he certainly knows when to put his foot down, so to speak. As electrifying as Gosling's toothpick-chewing Driver is, the performance that impressed me the most was Albert Brooks as former movie producer and current mob boss Bernie Rose. I never thought the sight of the star of Lost in America would fill me with dread, but there you go.

RC: Albert Brooks walks away with the movie in his blood stained hands. Gosling, Mulligan and Bryan Cranston are all great, but the character you remember is the ex-movie producer-turned-gangster Rose.

He delivers what may be the best bad guy line of the year. When Gosling's character refuses to shake his hand because his hands are dirty from working Rose says, "So are mine." Great stuff.

NE: The only real criticism I'd make of Brooks is his performance makes Ron Perlman's character, Rose's less well-spoken partner Nino, stand out for being so conventional. But that's really about the only complaint I can put against the film. Every shot is artfully composed, and the tension-filled sequences of Gosling waiting for his getaway driving gigs to begin will make you reconsider how long you can hold your breath. And the music — I've been listening to the soundtrack every day since it was released last week.

RC: It's funny that a movie that values silence so much — there are l-o-n-g pauses in the dialogue — has such a great soundtrack, but there you go, just another surprising thing about an unconventional but intriguing movie.

A lawsuit accusing Sacha Baron Cohen of causing injuries to a woman during the filming of Bruno should be dismissed. The court said Monday that the finding prevents Baron Cohen from being sued by Richelle Olson, who claims she fell and hit her head moments after struggling with the comedian and his crew as she ordered him to leave a charity bingo game.

Moneyball director Bennett Miller tells Metro his recipe for turning a lagging project into a finished film

NED EHRBAR
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

The journey of Moneyball from a best-selling book to screen is nearly as dramatic as the story it tells, about Oakland Athletics' GM Billy Beane's use of unorthodox scouting techniques to put together a winning team on a shoestring budget. Before star Brad Pitt could step in front of the camera as Beane, he first had to deal with the dismissal of director Steven Soderbergh, whose version of the film made the studio nervous enough to halt production. Enter director Bennett Miller (Capote) — plus a rewrite by Aaron Sorkin (the Social Network) — and things were soon underway again. Here, Miller gives Metro a step-by-step guide on how to restart a project.

STEP 1: IGNORE THE PAST
There's this whole backstory which I was oblivious to as it was happening. You know, I didn't really know anything until all of that went down. I was told more or less the history of what had happened and the condition of the movie and the problems that had occurred and most importantly Brad's determination to get it made and his passion to stick with it.

STEP 2: BE IN THE RIGHT PLACE AT THE RIGHT TIME
My perspective was that I was struggling to get another movie made and finally had to concede that it was not going to happen. The timing of that coincided with the opening up of this opportunity, which it was several months after it had shut down.

STEP 3: FIND YOUR ANGLE
I read everything there was to read about it and turned it over in my head and saw what would be my way into it. It's the dual track of this character, this story of a guy who's trying to win baseball games, who's just extremely competitive and desperate to do a very difficult thing, which is to win a championship with a third of the money as the rich teams. But more interesting to me was what was happening beneath that. That there's a character who's being driven by some personal, private issues that maybe nobody else in the story understands, meaning this is a person whose life didn't turn out the way he had expected it to. It becomes a story about a guy who later in life chooses to be ruthlessly honest and questioning of everything in some kind of search for redemption.

HANDOUT

▶ Moneyball, starring Brad Pitt, had a false start the first time around.

STEP 4: MEET BRAD PITT
I flew to L.A. and met with Brad, and we sat and had a long conversation about how to make the movie. At that point, I don't think anybody ever looked back.

STEP 5: DON'T WORRY ABOUT THE SCRIPT
The book reports on [Beane's backstory] with a kind of detail that no movie could possibly cover just because it's a book. So the way that we ultimately treated that stuff was invented very late and grew from a lot of improvisation. Most of those scouts were real scouts. The guys in the flashback who scout young Billy are both real scouts — one of which actually did scout Billy Beane back in 1979. That scene was 100 per cent improvised.

STEP 6: UNDERSTAND THE MEANING OF LIFE
The line from the movie that comes to mind is, "It's an unfair game." And life's unfair, and that's the truth. It's just unfair. And how do you deal with that information? How do you manage that? It just seems to always go that way, like you really have to bust some heads to get anywhere sometimes.

Make a standout video

Past TUFF winners share their tips on movie making

Want to know how to make a stand-out video, short film or just improve your home movies? With the Toronto Urban Film Festival screening in subway stations around Toronto, Metro decided to ask some past festival winners for advice on how to make a great short film.

Have fun! There are so many things you can do – Don't be afraid to try some techniques, tools or ideas that may be a little far from traditional. If you have equipment at your disposal, why not make a few different entries?
Brandi Boulet, Dog Days. Winner: Best Screenplay, 2009

As with any project, you can't create an amazing work overnight. Stick with a core idea or concept that will hold your interest through to it's completion, and don't be afraid to mix it up along the way.
Joe Pascale, Urban Jungle. Winner: Best in Category, 2009

Never restrict yourself with medium when it comes to film, and it's great practice to step out of the box from the usual stuff that has been done before.
Charuvi Agrawal, Dundas n' Bathurst. Winner: First Place, 2007

Make what you would like to see. Cross your fingers. Use your heart.
Elizabeth Belliveau, Anchor Your Heart. Winner: Best in Category, 2008.

Short and simple like Nike says "JUST DO IT".
Daniel Sidorowicz, Our Toronto: Nuit Blanche 08. Winner: People's Choice Award, 2009

Finally (and most importantly) drink coffee and stock up on a good selection of candy bars.
Vuk Dragojevic, The Spit. Winner: 3rd Place, 2009

I Don't Know How She Does It

Genre: Comedy
Director: Douglas McGrath
Stars: Sarah Jessica Parker, Greg Kinnear, Olivia Munn, Christina Hendricks, Pierce Brosnan

Screenwriter Aline Brosh McKenna is like the McDonald's of female friendly rom-coms. She churns 'em out good and regular and the meals always taste about the same. They go down easy and leave you greasy. But in this rom-com factory, sometimes the deep-fryer's not working just right and you're left with the tepid mush that all these films really are. This is a film based on the book by the same name, written by Allison Pearson. By most accounts it was a palatable story about a hard-working mom whose demanding job sometimes puts her at odds with mommy duties. Translated to 90 minute short-hand, it becomes a screechy, silly caricature that leaves little room for subtlety.

HEIDI PATALANO

Straw Dogs

Genre: Action
Director: Rod Lurie
Stars: James Marsden, Kate Bosworth, Alexander Skarsgaard

There are a lot of remakes out there that never should've happened. However, Straw Dogs won't fall under that category. Although in its new incarnation, it will be demoted from the classic status that the original 1971 version had, this pulpier take poses a strong argument for being relevant, at least for two weeks in the box office. James Marsden and Kate Bosworth play arrogant, Hollywood ex-pats hoping to enjoy some peace while renovating a house and barn where the wife (Bosworth) grew up in Blackwater, Miss. Aleksander Skarsgaard plays a polite but mildly threatening ex-boyfriend who is contracted to rebuild their roof. As the L.A. couple's very un-Southern ways grate on the locals, something sinister begins to encroach on their once-happy marriage. HEIDI PATALANO

Gainsbourg: A Heroic Life

Genre: Drama
Director: Joann Sfar
Stars: Eric Elmosnino, Doug Jones

This mildly unconventional, at times overly precious biopic about the late French singer-songwriter Serge Gainsbourg benefits from a fine lead performance: Eric Elmosnino is a dead-ringer for his character. The usual artist-career cliches are avoided, but the surreal touches left in their place feel more like a filmmaker imposing his style on a subject than a true illumination of Gainsbourg's brilliance. ▶ Hakuna Matata! The Lion King makes a return to big screens, this time in 3D.

The circle of life

Metro's Chris Alexander takes his son to The Lion King 3D redux
Dark overtones deviate from Disney's recent bubblegum fare

CHRIS ALEXANDER
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Disney has gone back into their vaults and dusted off their 1991 classic The Lion King and given it a 3D overhaul, releasing it to screens anew. The film looks and sounds incredible but it's not necessarily the audio/visual razzle dazzle that might strike many parents. Rather, compared to the studio's more recent, considerably sunnier fare like Toy Story, Bolt and Tangled, The Lion King is a much darker affair than you might recall. Something Jack can attest to.

Jack is my 4-and-a-half-year-old son, and I decided to take him along to the press screening, further exemplifying the 'circle of life' theme of the film itself. I vividly recall watching The Lion King as a kid, the last gasp of my childhood before adolescence consumed me whole and "cartoons" ceased to have appeal. So sitting in that darkened theatre, Jack by my side, was surreal and rather lyrical, both of us humbled before massive projected 3D images of illustrated African savannah, tumbling fauna, stoic royal felines and red eyed predators. Jack was rightfully awed…but also more than a little bit upset.

Maybe it was the core story, a familiar early Disney cocktail (think Bambi and Dumbo) that taps into the primal fear of losing a parent but couples it with the shock of murder, deceit, child abuse and the visceral jolts of slavering hyenas who eat everything in sight. It is a cuddlier Hamlet after all, something I obviously never noticed as a kid, and it has all the broad dramatic, Shakespearean strokes intact but with the added element of toothy lion battles to the death…

▶ Chris Alexander and son Jack

There's no denying that The Lion King is every single inch a masterpiece. It's a flawless animated triumph of warm, hand drawn cell animation that is handsomely goosed by the added depth of this new 3D conversion. It's bold and brave, teaching kids lessons about the darkness of living while celebrating hope and optimism. It's a real movie, not watered down fodder designed to sell hamburgers.

Still, parents of young children should be warned and reminded...this ain't Mickey Mouse Clubhouse.

"I loved it", Jack said to me after lights went up. "But it was too sad when Simba's daddy died. And it was also a little bit scary ... and there were too many skeletons ..."

Stars square off in Killer Elite

NED EHRBAR
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

In their new film, Killer Elite, British stars Jason Statham and Clive Owen go head to head in a tough-guy showdown many movie fans have been hoping to see for years. It's all supposedly true and based on the accounts of ex-army officer Ranulph Fiennes (third cousin of Ralph and Joseph). So what was it like for Statham and Owen to finally face off? Why don't we let them tell you.

JASON STATHAM: Fancy film star Clive Owen has met his match.

Going up against Clive Owen: That's a good day at the office, right? Yeah, he's a real intense individual. He takes his work very seriously. The whole movie sets itself up where we never, ever come face to face. It's like this cat-and-mouse game. I don't want to be doing what I'm doing, I don't want to see this guy, I want to get in and out, get the situation taken care of it and get out, and he's just got to be the man to stop that happening. So when he gets a hold of me, it's a bit of an intense situation. We made it really, really real and gritty and very rough around the edges, and it just paid off.

We both have a lot of different sort of films behind our backs, and he's got such great respect and such great critical acclaim. You know, I've done stuff that's appealing to a different audience, and hopefully we'll get the two to come together.

HANDOUT

▶ Jason Statham

CLIVE OWEN: I will kill Jason Statham with kindness.

Going up against Jason Statham: It's actually a pleasure doing those big fight scenes with someone like Jason because he's so experienced. He's technically really gifted and really good at them. You know, I'm pretty good technically with those fights. I've done quite a bit of them myself. You can really commit, but you know that there's an understanding and an element of safety.

There is a moral ambiguity in that [Killer Elite] is not about good guys and bad guys. When they do come together, obviously you want to see a bit of fireworks.

[Real tough guys] are much more low-key than you would think. They don't strut around, they don't act tough. They just are, and they're very quiet about it.

So, who would win in a fight?

OWEN: Jason.

STATHAM: We'd rather get drunk together. I don't know about beating each other up.

▶ Madonna

BEIJING, China — When you're deep in the bowels of economy class, a 12-hour flight across the Pacific is not pleasant.

I was about five hours out of San Francisco when the hallucinations kicked in.

As deep vein thrombosis clotted my blood and the Brazilian sleeping pill did something other than put me to sleep, I ended up conducting a question-and-answer session with myself.

Here's what I remember.

I don't remember seeing any CD shelving in the 2012 IKEA catalogue. No more Benno shelves or Ivar racks? What does that mean?
Well, at least they still sell things that look like milk crates.

Why do people keep giving money to Madonna to direct films?
Given the reviews of W.E., they won't anymore.

Best go back to fulfilling the obligations of that $120-million deal with Live Nation.

Time to go on the road again, dear.

Hasn't anyone had enough of U2 by now?
After a less-than-successful album, a two-year world tour and a documentary at TIFF, all that's left for 2011 is a reissue of Achtung Baby.

There may be four albums' worth of material in the works, but they really need to go away to dream things up again.

Who's buying all those Adele albums? I mean, she's sold 10 million copies of 21.
Lots of different people — and not just those who pick up their music from the counter of Starbucks or at Wal-Mart. This is a rare album that has become a genuine phenomenon based solely on the quality of the music.

Why haven't there been more songs written about 9-11? I mean, that was a defining moment for so many things.
Other than The Rising by Bruce Springsteen, Let's Roll from Neil Young and a couple of country songs, the events of that day haven't really been captured in song. The trauma may have been too great.

Aren't people tired of hearing Gary Glitter's Rock and Roll, Part 2 at sporting events? And Crazy Train? And Are You Ready for This?
Note to self: write a column on new songs for stadia.

I'm sure I'll have more questions and answers for myself on the way home. The flight home from my conference takes 13-and-a-half hours.

Joe Bermudez is a DJ of all trades.

His remix of Britney Spears' I Wanna Go topped the Billboard Dance/Club chart late last month. He also produces a weekly radio show for XM satellite radio that you can download at massmovementradio.com.

We got Bermudez to say a few words about the tracks that really get the crowds jumping when he's working the clubs.

Party Rock Anthem by LMFAO
Without a doubt the biggest dance record of the year. From the radio to the club to even a Kia commercial, there is just no escaping this one. No matter where I am, it is the one track that never fails to rock the house.

Save The World by Swedish House Mafia
Individually Axwell, Angello and Ingrosso are pretty huge, so combine those talents and you are going to get a track that is sonically massive. ... I've had some pretty epic moments while playing this record.

Levels by Avicii
This Swedish producer has a really nice buzz about him and for good reason. His uplifting chord progressions instantly transport club goers to a euphoric state.

Live Those Days Tonight by Friendly Fires
It's probably my favourite remix of the summer. Every time I hear it, I personally get fired up. When I play this record, you know it's go time!

Going for broke

Beth Behrs and Kat Dennings: Two budding stars ready to rock a new sitcom 2 Broke Girls will premiere Monday on Citytv and CBS

As their interview takes place in late July, Beth Behrs and Kat Dennings can count a grand total of one week spent working together. That was when they filmed the pilot for 2 Broke Girls — and that was in April.

But joining a reporter for breakfast at Mel's Drive-in, a Valley landmark, they share laughs and a chemistry that seems years in the making — just as they do on their sassy new comedy as struggling waitresses at a Brooklyn greasy spoon.

While waiting for production to resume in early August, they solidified their friendship.

Kat: "We've been checking in with each other every few days."

Beth: "I'll randomly text Kat about something I'm watching on TV in the middle of the night: 'You need to see this!'"

Kat: "Like, Extreme Makeover did WHAT?!"

Orders are taken. Kat calls for wheat toast and, more urgently, a cup of joe.

"Nectar!" she rejoices when the coffee arrives. "And it's not bad."

"I like diner coffee," Beth agrees as her cellphone sounds off.

"Oh, gee," she sighs after checking the number displayed. "This guy has been calling me all morning. I don't say my name on my message, so maybe he thinks I'm someone else. He keeps leaving these intense, long messages."

"Let me do it, let me do it!" says Kat, eagerly snatching the phone and, in the guttural tone of a longshoreman, growling into it: "WHAT!!! Who IS this? WRONG number! NEVER call again!!!"

They both dissolve into laughter. "That makes me SO happy!" Kat giggles.

Strong writing

The dialogue is snappy, befitting the show's topflight creative team.

- Michael Patrick King (Sex and the City) and Whitney Cummings (TV's comedy "It" girl) are the writers.

On 2 Broke Girls, their characters will form a similar bond. But not instantly. First, they have to size each other up.

Kat plays street-wise Max Black, who, to make ends meet, must work two jobs, one of which is the night shift at the downtrodden Williamsburg Diner.

Beth plays chic Caroline Channing, whose ritzy Upper East Side lifestyle has abruptly come undone after her money-manager father got busted for financial shenanigans. Like Max, Caroline is now broke, too, and is seeking refuge at the diner waitressing alongside Max, who warily receives her not only as a co-worker but as a flat-mate, too.

Jay-Z has 99 problems and his children are one

Rapper reportedly paid former lover to not disclose he fathered her child

Jay-Z is happily expecting a child with wife Beyoncé, but it may not be his first.

Star magazine is reporting that the 41-year-old hip-hop icon fathered a love child with model Shenelle Scott nine years ago. Jerard Andrews, the father of the man who was previously believed to be the child's father, says DNA tests have concluded Jay-Z's paternity.

"Shenelle told me that Jay-Z gave her $1 million to keep her mouth shut. My understanding is that he's paying her child support," Andrews says. "Shenelle took the money and bought herself a really nice house in Trinidad."

NOT WORKING BECAUSE SHE'S WORKING. The on-again off-again relationship between Cameron Diaz and Yankees star Alex Rodriguez is reportedly off again.

"They broke up recently," a source close to the couple tells Us Weekly. "They're still very friendly and like each other. He has an enormous amount of respect for her."

As it turns out, work got in the way this time around.

Butter gets political at film fest

THE CANADIAN PRESS/CHRIS YOUNG

▶ Jennifer Garner

▶ Producer Harvey Weinstein used the gala premiere of Butter to take on current Republican firebrand Michele Bachman ▶ Metro talked with actress Jennifer Garner about his comments

NED EHRBAR
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Butter, a political satire featuring Jennifer Garner as an uptight conservative taking on an African-American foster child in Iowa's annual butter-sculpting contest, has quickly drawn allusions to Republican presidential candidate Michele Bachmann.

In a statement read by one of the film's stars, Olivia Wilde, Weinstein invited Bachmann to co-host the premiere of Butter in Iowa. "We could take some math classes in the morning to help balance the budget, brush up on the Constitution in the afternoon, play some ping-pong and then maybe some verbal ping-pong on gay rights and women's rights — especially the right to choose," he stated.

Metro spoke with Garner, who is also a producer on the film, the next day for her reaction.

"Harvey is a genius at a few things. He's really good at a lot of things, but he's a genius at a few things. Casting is one of them, and another one is without a doubt promotion and getting the word out about a movie, and that's what he's doing," she says.

"[Director] Jim Field Smith and I don't think of this movie as a political movie by any stretch. We think of it as a comedy, as a piece of entertainment, a colloquial story that has some dark undertones and pokes fun at politics in a small way. But that's why we're not in charge of promoting it and he is."

As much as Weinstein's move might make drawing comparisons between Garner's character and Bachman seem all too obvious, she's quick to point out that's not what she was going for — at least not really.

"It just shows how much they pervade the political landscape, how much the Tea Party is of the moment," Garner tells Metro. "We did this long enough ago that I wasn't trying to be Michele Bachmann — I didn't know who she was. I wasn't after Sarah Palin. But that's so much a part of what's out there."

I remember when I saw Star Wars. I was a kid on vacation with my parents and we went to a theatre to witness what would arguably become the biggest revenue generating stream in movie history. This walk down memory lane is brought to you by today's release of the Blue-ray versions of all six Star Wars movies. I need them like I need another corkscrew, but giving George Lucas money is an addiction.

Even though Darth Vader is only a child in The Phantom Menace, I've chosen a brooding wine to supplement my pursuit of this ultimate version of what I've already seen a hundred times.

Chile is cabernet country and the Viña Errázuriz 2009 Max Reserva Cabernet Sauvignon ($16.85 - $19.99) is powerful for the price, packing a youthful punch of deep berry fruit, smoky oak and chewy tannins. It's great with steak and its flavour force stays with you. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS CANADA. SOME PRODUCTS MAY NOT BE AVAILABLE IN ALL PROVINCES.

Chutney livens food

Originating in India, this condiment can be used to spice up bland dishes or sweeten hotter ones Apple & Sweet Pepper Chutney is ideal for fall

THE CANADIAN PRESS H/O

This recipe makes 250 ml (1 cup) of Apple and Sweet Pepper Chutney.

Many may not realize how international their daily meals are. Ketchup was developed from a Chinese sauce but got its name in Malaysia. Mustard began with the Romans but assumed its present form in France. Add to that list chutney, a condiment Europeans discovered in India that has become popular worldwide.

It usually consists of chopped fruits, vinegar, spices and sugar cooked into a chunky spread. Non-sweet vegetables such as peppers, onion and garlic can also be added. Common spices used include ginger, cinnamon, cloves, nutmeg, allspice and cardamom. It can be hot and spicy or sweet and sour.

Apple and Sweet Pepper Chutney

Fall is the perfect time to make this chutney, which is a delicious sweet-savoury complement for cheeses and meats such as chicken or pork.

Preparation:

1. In Dutch oven, combine apples, onions, red and yellow peppers, garlic, salt, cloves and hot pepper flakes. Stir in sugar and vinegar. Bring to a boil over high heat, stirring often. Reduce heat and boil gently for 30 minutes, stirring often.
2. Stir in currants. Reduce heat and simmer for 15 minutes or until thickened, stir often. Ladle into sterilized canning jars to within 1 cm (1/2 inch) of rim. Top with prepared new sealer lids. Apply jar rings just until fingertip tight. Wipe jars if necessary. Place in boiling water, with tops covered by at least 2.5 cm (1 inch) water. Boil for 10 minutes. Remove to drain.
3. Lids will vacuum seal as they cool. Test lids by pressing in centre (will not move). Do not retighten lids. Store any unsealed jars in refrigerator and use within 1 month. Keep sealed jars in cool place. THE CANADIAN PRESS/ FOODLAND ONTARIO

Ingredients:

Art speaks of 'ecologically diminished world'

Wilting street lamp, bronze dumpster among public artworks in Kitchener-wide exhibit Survive. Resist.

Public art is being scattered across the Kitchener area this month: a street lamp wilting like a dying flower, a bronze dumpster placed inside city hall, a sphinx-like rabbit covered with sod.

A total of 20 works are featured in the city's 2011 biennial exhibition of art in public spaces, titled Survive. Resist. Proposals came from 175 artists around the world, says Gordon Hatt, executive director of the artist-run CAFKA group staging the show.

"A lot of the artists we were looking at over the last year tended to have themes that dealt with surviving a world that was ecologically diminished," says Hatt.

"Often their work was expressing fear and angst, but it was also proposing solutions and attitudes that were resisting negativism or resisting despair. So surviving and resisting, that's what the artists are doing."

Hatt sees the bent-over street lamp, created by Lucy Howe of Windsor, Ont., as "a metaphor for an energy-starved environment," while the dumpster by Zeke Moores, also of Windsor, may make viewers consider both the value and the amount of waste in today's disposable economy.

The rabbit, sculpted by Kitchener artist Mary Catherine Newcomb, seems to emerge from the earth at the Cambridge Sculpture Garden and reflects her interest in "pantheistic religious knowledge," says Hatt.

Illness puts Raonic's return in question

Canada's Davis Cup team has proven they can win without star player Milos Raonic, but they would rather not have to do it again.

Raonic's much-anticipated return to tennis could be on hold, as the hard-serving 20-year-old from Thornhill fell ill earlier this week after arriving in Israel for Canada's match against the host country.

Raonic was hit with a bug, says Davis Cup captain Martin Laurendeau, and his status for Friday's second singles match against Amir Weintraub is uncertain.

"He's in the process of recovering and getting his strength back," Laurendeau said during a conference call Thursday.

"He wants to play. He trained this afternoon, he's really worked hard to be here and play for Canada. He deserves to play and he will if he can."

Raonic hasn't played since injuring his hip at Wimbledon in June. He underwent surgery July 5 in Vail, Colo., and announced his tournament return would be this weekend's Israel matchup.

Laurendeau believes having this specific Davis Cup target date inspired Raonic to a faster recovery.

"It really looked bad for the first few months after his injury," Laurendeau said. "But Milos is so determined, he's got Davis Cup as a top priority on his calendar and I think that was the key to success in his rehab."

If Raonic can't play Friday, the team will go with Peter Polansky of Thornhill. Raonic is also scheduled to play the first singles match on Sunday against Dudi Sela.

Leafs to debut sponsor patches on practice jersey Part of rich deal with shipping firm Purolator

The Toronto Maple Leafs have taken a small step down the slippery slope toward European-style shirt sponsorship.

On Friday morning, the Leafs will debut a credit-card sized patch on the chest of the team's practice jersey advertising the Purolator brand. It's one part of a sponsorship deal that has the Canadian shipping giant paying the club an amount in the low seven figures, according to MLSE sources.

The Leafs become the sixth NHL franchise to take advantage of the league's new (and in certain U.S. markets, desperate) search for additional revenue.

At this point, it's an experiment contained to morning skates and the off-season.

The road leads, of course, to the sacramental cloth players wear on game days.

Shirt sponsorship in the modern, splashed-in-big-letters-across-the-front sense started in Germany's Bundesliga in the early 1970s. It was deeply unpopular, but within a decade everyone was doing it.

British soccer club Manchester City recently signed a 10-year, $625-million US sponsorship deal with Etihad Airways, the major component of which is their shirt-front billboard.

At some point business logos will migrate from practice jerseys to NHL game uniforms as well, because too many clubs need the money to survive.

When and if the NHL's most famous symbols begin to fade in the capitalist clutter, purists will wonder if anything is sacred anymore.

The slow creep of commerce across the ocean and into North American sport suggests that nothing ever was. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Blue Bombers could soon be in real trouble

CFL EXTRA POINTS

DAN TOTH
TORONTO@METRONEWS.CA

The Winnipeg Blue Bombers have been booted from Swaggerville to Staggerville, a home for battered bones and bruised egos.

Nobody likes to see a team fall on hard times, and the 7-3 Bombers still hold on to first place in the CFL East, but a two-game spanking courtesy of the Saskatchewan Roughriders has certainly put the Bombers in their place. There will be a lot less chest-beating coming from the Manitoba capital now.

Adding to the misery is a mysterious rib injury to Bombers starting QB Buck Pierce. The Bombers could find themselves in real trouble as they try to hold on to top spot in the East.

Finding Pierce in the sick bay is no surprise, considering his black-and-blue history in both Winnipeg and B.C. But with the additional loss of middle linebacker Joe Lobendahn (ACL) and uncertain health of defensive back Jonathan Hefney, the Bombers have problems.

Making matters worse, the reeling Bombers have two games in the next three weeks against the Grey Cup champ Alouettes. In all, the Bombers will face division rivals in five of the next six weeks, which could decide their fate.

Jyles shows some promise: Steven Jyles wasn't a winner in his first start with the Toronto Argos, but he at least shows the potential to not only be successful, but sell some tickets too.

Jyles replaced deposed QB Cleo Lemon and has inherited a 2-7 team that is dead last in points produced. Yet Jyles demonstrates the skill set that allows quarterbacks to succeed in this league. In addition to a strong arm, he can make things happen with his legs, unlike his predecessor.

After coming off the nine-game injured list, Jyles is essentially still in training camp, even though most other pivots are in mid-season form. Given a chance to perform, Jyles could be the key ingredient in leading the league's worst offence out of the doldrums, even though a playoff appearance seems unlikely.

Stamps' grip on top spot a bit shaky: The Calgary Stampeders are a tough team to figure out. Despite climbing back into first place in the West with a Labour Day rematch win over Edmonton, the 7-3 Stamps don't always look like the league's premier team.

Although he threw for more than 300 yards against Edmonton, starter Henry Burris has been falling into bad throwing habits and posted just one TD toss in the Edmonton rematch. That long-shot Hail Mary that found the end zone is hardly a sign of an offence that's ready to dominate opponents.

Credit manager Gibson with raising Arizona

From the ashes of two miserable years has risen the most surprising team of this baseball season.

Just how the Arizona Diamondbacks became the runaway leaders in the NL West is a worst-to-first jigsaw story where the pieces somehow fit far better than anyone could have predicted. That begins with manager Kirk Gibson.

The Diamondbacks have acquired his team-first, grind-it-out, no-baloney mentality. Anyone venturing to ask Gibson about individual honours for his team does so at his own risk, especially any suggestion that he's a shoo-in for NL manager of the year.

"He doesn't like to talk about that kind of stuff," general manager Kevin Towers said in an understatement.

Gibson has surrounded himself with an all-star coaching staff of sorts, with his old Detroit teammate Alan Trammell as bench coach, Don Baylor, hitting coach, Charles Nagy, pitching coach, Matt Williams, third-base coach, and Eric Young, first-base coach.

Gibson said he learned most from Sparky Anderson, his Tigers manager. He will not tell players whether they are in the next day's lineup, telling them to check when they arrive at the clubhouse. That way, he says, everybody is ready to play.

"There's no question it shows I have confidence in everybody on my roster. They all play," he said. "I told you guys a long time ago, I love my roster. You've got to keep everybody healthy. You've got to keep everybody engaged."

Gibson, as any serious baseball fan knows, is responsible for one of the most iconic moments in the game's history, his 1988 pinch-hit World Series home run for the Los Angeles Dodgers when he could barely walk, leading broadcaster Jack Buck to famously exclaim, "I don't believe what I just saw!"

The quote could well describe these Diamondbacks.

CHRISTIAN PETERSEN/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Kirk Gibson

At the core of their lineup are a handful of holdovers from 2007, when Arizona's young team advanced to the NLCS — catcher Miguel Montero, shortstop Stephen Drew, centre-fielder Chris Young and right fielder Justin Upton. The rest of the roster is an assortment of players acquired in trades, youngsters brought up through the Diamondbacks' minor-league system and free-agent signees.

19-4

Heading into this weekend's final road series of the regular season, at San Diego, Arizona has won 19 of 23 in the last month.

Montero has blossomed into a leader, working hard to improve his defence while developing into one of the best hitters at his position.

"This is a team job, man," he said. "When you work as a team, you always expect the best. We are so connected together. Everybody cheers for everybody. That makes it special."

Upton, still just 24, is having the breakout year that always was expected of him.

"I feel comfortable with where I am, just realizing it's a process becoming your own player," he said. "The biggest thing for me is just enjoying the game every day, enjoying just going out there and relaxing."

Arizona has come from behind in 44 of its 87 victories.

When Drew broke his right ankle sliding into home plate on July 20, ending his season, the common feeling was that the ride had been nice, but Arizona was finished. The Diamondbacks are 35-17 since then.

After Arizona went on a six-game slide in a rugged road trip a month ago, the lead over the Giants dipped to a game, then the Diamondbacks reeled off nine wins in a row.

TFC, Galaxy swap defenders

Kyle Davies has captained U.S. under-20 teams

EZRA SHAW/GETTY IMAGES

Toronto FC acquired Kyle Davies on Thursday from the Los Angeles Galaxy in exchange for fellow defender Dasan Robinson.

The move came just before Major League Soccer's roster freeze, which runs through the rest of the regular season and the MLS Cup playoffs.

"We are acquiring a young central defender with leadership experience and I feel Kyle will fit into our plans both now and long-term," Toronto FC head coach Aron Winter said in a release.

The 22-year-old Davies joined the Galaxy in May but did not make an appearance with the club. He began his career at Southampton in England in 2007 with the youth and reserve team.

The Danville, Calif., native then signed a contract with the MLS, joining Real Salt Lake in 2009. He was later traded to FC Dallas in April of that year but was waived by the club prior to joining the Galaxy.

Davies captained the U.S. team at both the 2009 CONCACAF under-20 Championship and the 2009 FIFA under-20 World Cup.

Toronto acquired Robinson, 27, on July 28 from the Chicago Fire but he made just one appearance for the club, Aug. 18 in Panama against Tauro FC during a CONCACAF Champions League group match.

Myers signs seven-year, $38.5M deal with Buffalo

Two years ago, defenceman Tyler Myers was a fresh-faced 19-year-old unsure if he was even going to make the Buffalo Sabres season-opening roster.

On Thursday, Myers' future in Buffalo was secured through the 2019-2020 season after he signed a $38.5 million US, seven-year contract extension.

"I'm very excited today to solidify a long-term spot and be a part of this organization as it grows," Myers said. "It's somewhere I want to be for the rest of my career. And I'm still young."

DAVID DUPREY/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ Tyler Myers

Convinced that Myers, the NHL's 2009 rookie of the year, has the potential to be one of the league's elite defenceman, the Sabres wasted no time in locking up the player a year before his three-year rookie contract expired.

"We wanted to recognize Tyler not only for his abilities now, but his abilities in the future," said general manager Darcy Regier, who opened talks only two weeks ago. "It has been nothing short of a terrific start to what I think will be an outstanding career."

Myers will make $12 million in 2011-12, $6 million in 2012-13, $5 million in 2013-14 and 2014-15, $4 million in 2015-16, $3.5 million in 2016-17, $3.5 million in 2017-18 and $3 million in 2018-19.

At six-foot-eight, Myers is the NHL's second tallest player behind Bruins captain Zdeno Chara. And in two seasons, the Sabres' 2008 first-round draft pick has shown he has a fluid-skating style that belies his size, while also possessing an offensive knack.

Myers has 21 goals and 64 assists for 85 points in 162 career games. Though he struggled in opening his sophomore season last year, Myers bounced back to lead Buffalo defencemen with 37 points (10 goals, 27 assists) and finish with a respectable zero plus-minus rating. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today's horoscope

For today's crossword answers and for expanded horoscopes, go to metronews.ca

♈ Aries March 21-April 20 If someone in a position of power offers you advice today, you should listen and learn.

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21 Try not to get upset or uptight today. How you react to provocation will determine what happens next.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 The depth and intensity of your feelings will surprise you today, but don't try to deny that they exist.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 Someone you meet will attract you like a moth to the proverbial flame.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug.23 Someone in a position of authority thinks highly of you. Use him or her to get what it is you desire.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22 If you start a new relationship today, it'll last a lifetime. If an existing relationship needs spicing up, it's time.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 Spend less time on other people's problems and more time on your own.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 Sit back and let life come to you, and expect surprises of an extremely pleasant nature.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 It's okay to focus on material things. It's not all about money, of course, but a lot of it is.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 Creatively, you are on a high right now. Produce something special.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 What happens today will answer a question that has been nagging at you for months.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20. Forget about protecting what you already have and look for ways to get more. SALLY BROMPTON
